

A fun and easy way for kids to learn about missions.

Hello Parents,

This week, travel with us to the West African country of Côte d'Ivoire (Ivory Coast) where most people are not Christian. The majority religion here is Islam and the Marcory Adventist School has a number of Muslim students.

In today's video, your kids will meet two Muslim girls who attend Marcory. They talk about what it's like to have a different faith from most people at the school. We hope this episode will show your children how inclusivity and kindness can go a long way in sharing Jesus with the world around them.

Pre-video Discussion Questions

- Do you know anyone with a religion different from your own? What are some differences? What are some similarities? (If your kids don't know anyone, you could ask if they know of other religions)
- How would it feel to be the only Christian in your school?

VIDEO

In today's video, see how kindness is a way you can share Jesus' love wherever you go.

Post-video Discussion Questions

- Imagine if you met someone who did not know anything about Jesus (maybe you already have). If they asked you to tell your favorite story about him, which one would you tell and why?

Prayer Points

- Ask for God to be in our hearts so that we can continue to share kindness and love with each other.
- Ask kids what they would add to the prayer list.

Did You Know?

- Maranatha is building churches and school classrooms in the city of Abidjan, which is the financial capital of Côte d'Ivoire.
- Côte d'Ivoire means "Ivory Coast" in French. The national language of the country is French.
- There are about 9,500 Seventh-day Adventists in Côte d'Ivoire, out of a population of 25 million.
